REPRESENTATION MATTERS

Bodies of Water

For many Bahamians, the ocean is home. From these waters comes sustenance, opportunity, and identity. But this relationship is also complex and paradoxical.

Vala North

In the far northern atolls of Papua New Guinea, scientist chieftain and visionary John Aini resurrects old secret ways and melds them with what he and his fellow chieftains and their people know of the coral reefs they rely on. Vala North is a story of a thin thread of hope in a changing world, hope for coral reefs around these islands, and hope for the communities that rely on them.

Land of the Yakamas

"Land of the Yakamas" is a short film that focuses on the importance of the ancestral lands surrounding the general Nch'i-Wàna (Columbia River) area, as well as some of the environmental challenges the communities of the region face.

DURGA: Forging a New Trail

In Nepal, a young woman pursues a different path—changing not only the societal and familial expectations of herself, but for future generations.

COMING SOON

Finding Salmon

Follow 11-year-old, Keyona, into a wondrous world of trees, water, and friendly fish... and find the spirit of Salmon Watch, a program that connects Oregon youth to their backyard river ecosystems.
